at the Allen Organ

To:

The organist and choir director of the First Presbyterian Church.

The coordinating secretary of the Georgia Music Education Association.

A member of the Statesboro Music Club.

Chairman of Student Life Enrichment Committee.

A concert organist and pianist.

A doctor of music.

A beloved teacher.

The organist at our basketball games.

A great friend and sport.

to you, "Dr. Bro" —

Dr. Jack W. Broucek

the senior class of 1964 proudly dedicates the 1964 reflector.

foreword

Life at G S C, from the long registration lines in September to the last exam in June, cannot possibly be revealed between the covers of a simple book. For each individual here the story is different and the scope is varied. But some things will always be familiar to each of us . . . the student center chats, the folk sings, the lunch room lines, and the hours of study and work.

The 1964 REFLECTOR has tried to recapture a few of these familiar moments for you, hoping that they will help you to recall at least part of the spirit of Georgia Southern.

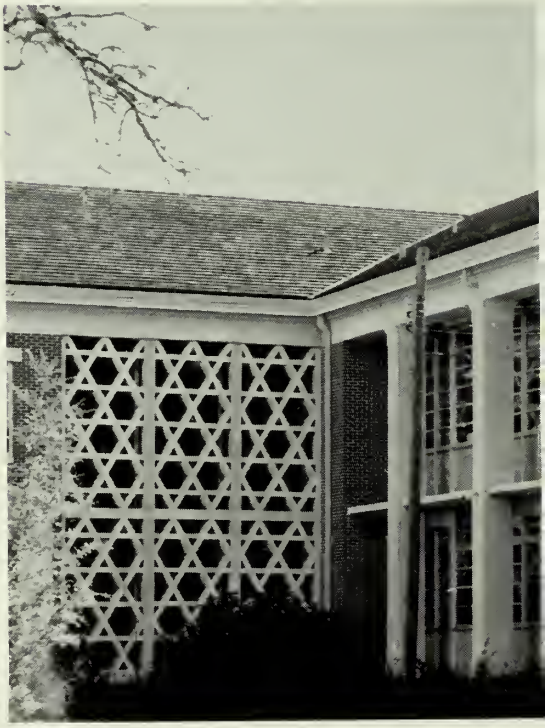
student life



georgia southern college

means different things to different people:

to the freshmen . . .

a new home, new friends,

registration, orientation,

rat day, confusion!

to the sophomores . . . a new home but old friends, helping the freshmen, labs, practice, mail.

to the juniors . . .
term paper, bull
sessions, fraternity
pins, weekend trips
home, class rings.

to the seniors
still more work
ahead, but time
fun, the end
sight, finally
last goodbyes.

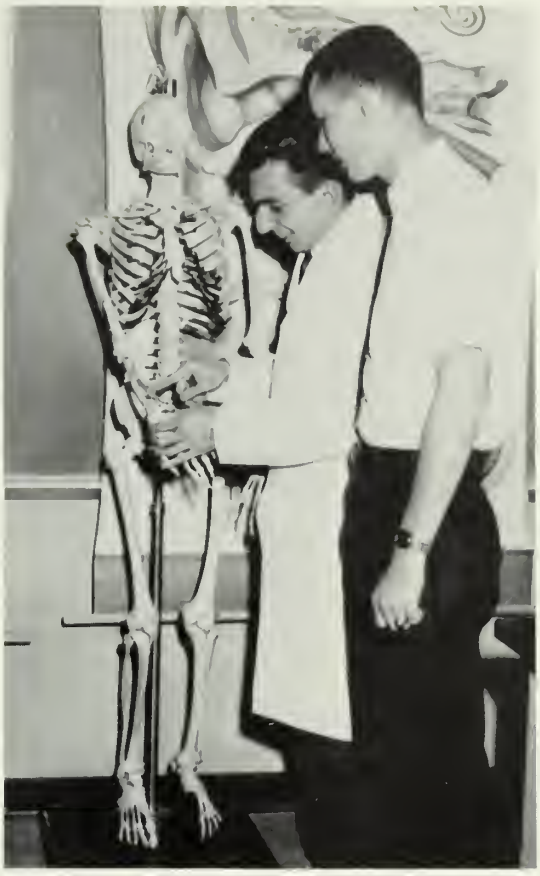
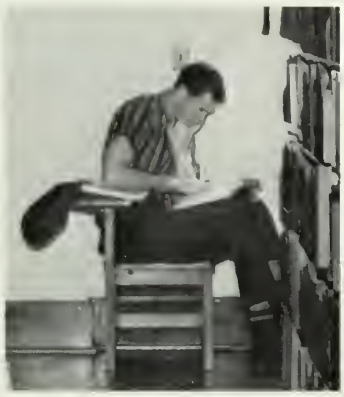
to the faculty . . .
lectures, labs, coffee,
sports, chaperoning.

throughout the year, our campus offers not only study and work but:





"The Father"

"l'Alouette"

"Master Pierre Patelin"

The Lettermen

one of the Four Preps

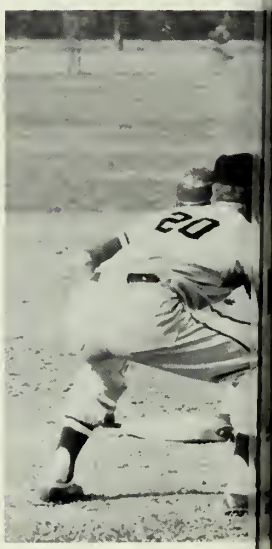
entertainment specials . . . plays and concerts by the masquers and big name groups

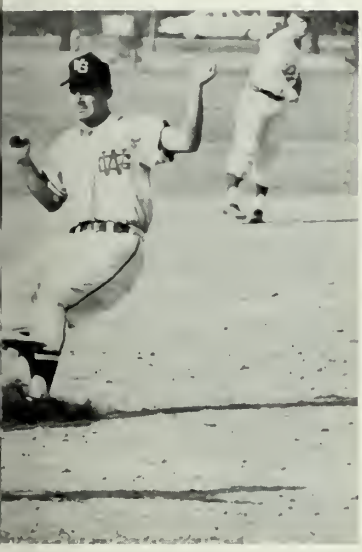
The Chad Mitchell Trio

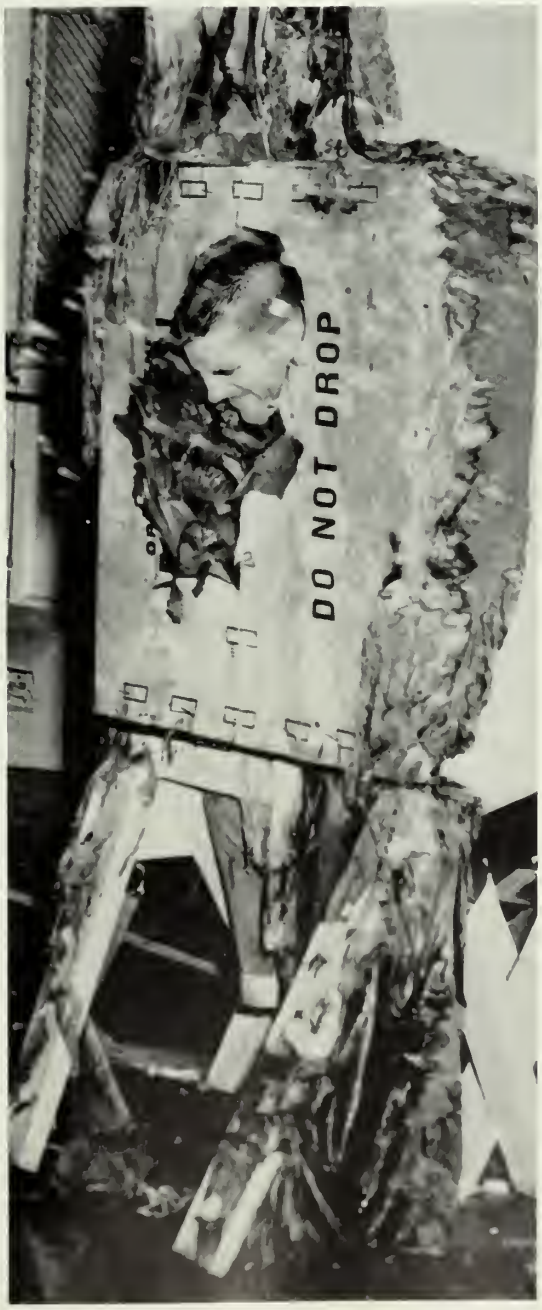
"The Taming of the Shrew"

students enter into . . . folk sings, dances, balls, parties, beauty contests.

also sports,
carnivals,
initiations,
christmas caroling







DO NOT DROP

more serious moments . . . dedication of brannen and hendricks, kennedy's memorial service, social science lectures.

g.s.c. . . . a place to study, relax, have fun and live —

1963-64 . . . a good year at georgia southern.

reflections

The Reflector, Vol. 36, is finished and sent to press. I and my staff have known the pressure, the hard work, the tension, and—yes—the fun that thirty-five editors before me have known. But we hope that, to you, this won't be just another Reflector. We have tried to present all phases of life at Georgia Southern College in the traditional ways, but with some added features. For example this year we have used more color and have tried to place more emphasis on student life and activities. We sincerely hope that the '64 Reflector will be sufficient to recall all the meaning that the 1963-64 school year had for you.

It is, of course, to my staff that I owe the most. My right hand has been Anne Edge, whose initiative and cooperation took much of the load off my shoulders. As always, Thurman was completely efficient as Business Manager. Pat was always ready to step in whenever and for whatever she was needed, and Ron (and camera) was never idle. With little or no prodding the section editors took over their sections and handled them beautifully. With all sincerity, I thank the Currys, Ed Jones, and Ric Mandes. It would be an understatement to say that I could not have done without any of these people.

Special thanks to my roommate Frances who had to live with me during all my ups and downs and who (bless her English major heart!) has served as unofficial copy editor for the annual. Thanks also to Mary, Tyrone and all my other friends who, without knowing, helped so much to make this the 1964 Reflector possible for you.
